If you are stitching fingertip towels for the holidays, don't overlook the All Stacked Up chart shown at right. With just a little bit of change you can rearrange it to fit into a fingertip towel as shown below left.

Accents has printed instructions for making the modifications and included it with the purchase of the chart. Available now in the shop.

This Saturday provides two shop activities to be taken advantage of by stitchers.
The first is the Open Stitching time from 11 am until 3 pm. Just bring a stitching project and sit and stitch!

Saturday is the Big Sale random saving day. If you come into the shop you'll save 15% on your total purchase of all in-stock, regular priced merchandise. You MUST tell me when you checkout that you want the Big Sale 15% off or you will not receive the discount

I am on the needlework industry's Copyright Committee. Our task is to aware stitchers of how copyright violations harm designers, retailers and stitchers. Before we can do that, we need to know how stitchers think about copyrights.
Please email me your answer to these questions—and please be honest, even if you are going to tell me something you know I don't want to hear. I need to know what stitchers are really feeling and thinking and believe.

1. Do you know about copyrights in regard to cross stitch charts? Elaborate on what you know.
  2. Do you ignore copyright protection and "share" charts with your friends? If yes, is it because of the cost of charts, or just because. . .
  3. Do you think it's wrong or okay to purchase a chart and make a copy to give to another stitcher? Elaborate.
  4. Do you find anything confusion about copyright protection in regard to cross stitch charts? Explain
- Stitchers, please, please, please answer the questions. The more responses I get, the more I can understand what stitchers everywhere are thinking.
